

These are two views of the website design for mobile phones:

The first shows the header section with the name of the website, the burger menu to save space and an image to introduce the subject matter. There is an introductory section below the first image and then a second smaller image.

The second view shows two sections which can be reached either through scrolling down or through using internal links in the burger menu. Each section has a read more button to allow for users to extend the section they are interested in. the page is finished off with a third image at the base of the page in keeping with the overall theme of the site. the social media links can go in the footer.
